SPEECH, LANGUAGE AND COMMUNICATION - LANGUAGE NEEDS

The Communication Pyramid

FACT

In the UK, over 1 million children and young people – that's 2 – 3 in every UK classroom – have some form of long term and persistent speech, language and communication difficulty.

The Communication Trust

Understanding the Communication Pyramid

Children develop communication skills in stages, much like building a house:

- Early interaction - eye contact, gestures, turn-taking
- Attention & Listening - focusing on people and sounds
- Play - learning through interaction and exploration
- Understanding - following instructions and making sense of language
- Talking - using words and sentences
- Speech Sounds - clarity of spoken words

Strong foundations are essential. If earlier skills (like attention or interaction) are still developing, this can affect later language skills.

Advice Corner

Top Tips to Encourage Language Development

- Reduce distractions
- Turn off TVs, phones, and background noise to help your child focus.
- Gain attention first
- Say your child's name and get to their level before speaking.
- Keep language simple
- Use short, clear sentences matched to their level.
- Expand what they say
- Child: "dog" → Adult: "Yes, big dog!"
- Give thinking time
- Pause and allow your child time to respond.
- Don't ask too many questions
- Comment more than question to reduce pressure.
- Read together
- Talk about pictures and stories to build vocabulary
- Model correct language
- Gently repeat phrases correctly rather than pointing out mistakes.
